Fired deputies: A suburban Atlanta sheriff who ordered a mass firing on his first day on the job was found in contempt of court Thursday for not omplying with a judge's order to restore 23 deputies to their posts.

Clayton County Sheriff Victor Hill has until noon on Feb. 10 to restore the deputies or face a possible fine of $1,000 a day, Judge Ben Miller said.

The sheriff, who is black, has been at the center of a racially tinged furor in Jonesboro, Ga., since Jan. 3, when he fired the employees without warning and without saying why. The employees were mainly whitemen, several of them high-ranking officers.

BTK killer: A Wichita, Kan., television station says it has received a postcard that could be from the BTK serial killer, the third such communication found in about a week

Besides a personal message for KAKE-TV, he TV station said the postcard contained a message for Wichita police, which it did not reveal at their request. The station said it had turned the postcard over to police. BTK — which stands for "Bird, Torture, Kill"—has been linked to eight unsolved killings from 1974 through 1986.

Kevorkian surgery: Assisted-suicide advocate Jack Kevorkian was released from prison in Detroit so he could undergo bilateral

The Army flip-flopped several times last year on whether it would withhold 15 percent of the payments, which could have cost Vice President Dick Cheney's former company $60 million a month.

Dan Carlson, spokesman for the Army Field Support Command in Rock Island, Ill., said the money never was withheld because the Army granted the company waivers pending the decision made Thursday.

Mass. bases: Massachusetts lawmakers on Thursday swiftly approved a bond authorization bill designed to help save Hanscom Air Force Base in Bedford and the U.S. Army Soldier Systems Center in Natick.

Gov. Mitt Romney filed the bill Tuesday to allow the state to invest $261 million to expand both facilities. The bonds are intended to create new jobs and persuade the Pentagon to spare the two facilities in the upcoming base closure process.

Euron scandal: Disgraced energy giant Euron Corp. was running scams to drive up the cost of power years before the 2000-01 West Coast energy crisis, according to audio transcripts and documents unveiled by a public utility in Everett, Wash., 30 miles north of Seattle.

By November 1997, Ennon apparently knew of loopholes in California's ill-advised deregulation plan, and by May 1998 — a month after the plan took effect — Ernon already was falsifying transmission schedules to inflate prices, Snohomish County Public Utility District officials said Thursday as they unveiled new evidence at a news conference.

HealthSouth trial: Jurors at Richard Scrushy's fraud trial in Birmingham, Alawatched video of the former HealthSouth CEO describing management's "incredible control" of the rehabilitation chain during a 1998 meeting.

In a DVD recording played Thursday, a fast-talking Scrushy also told of his own close watch over the company's finances and expenses.

Prosecutors say HealthSouth's books were awash that year in more than $600 million worth of fraud ordered by Scrushy.

As testimony in his criminal trial continued, prosecutors announced that former HealthSouth president and director James P. Bennett had been indicted in the fraud, which prosecutors say overstated earnings by about $2.7 billion from 1996 to 2002.

KATTERBACH, Germany - After waiting a year for their soldiers to return from Iraq, families at Katterbach Army Airfield didn't seem to mind that their reunions were delayed a couple of hours.

The families of 162 soldiers from the 1st Battalion, 1st Aviation Regiment and 601st Aviation Support Battalion followed the rules and patiently staved in the welcome home hangar, even though their loved ones were right next door.

Medical personnel at Landstuhl dealing with stresses of job By RUSS RIZZO LANDSTUHL, Germany After almost 20 years helping the wounded as a reservist, Capt. Rogelio Alonzo has developed a tolerance for seeing gruesome in-

But even his defenses break down sometimes, and he's overcome with sympathy.

"I hate seeing the amputees," said Alonzo, a nurse practitioner from Fullerton, Calif. "I sometimes have to turn away.'

Alonzo is one of 291 reservists from the 349th General Hospital in Los Angeles who has worked the past year at Landstuhl Regional Medical Center. Most will return home later this month, making way for 254 reservists who arrived Friday from the 328th General Hospital in Salt Lake City.

Reservists provide key relief in the hospital, fulfilling services from bedside care to cooking. They help ease the hospital's workload that comes from serving almost 22,000 wounded soldiers from Iraq and Afghanistan since the war on terrorism began in 2001. "I can't say we're doing most of the work, but we're doing a lot of it," said Col. Joanne Slyter, a dietician with the 349th reserve unit who volunteered to stay an extra vear

During busy times, the hospital sometimes resembles a scene out television "M*A*S*H," Slyter said, as gur-neys carrying wounded soldiers roll by in every direction and doctors dart in and out of surgery.

The hospital reserve units are made up of mostly nurses, who come from a variety of backgrounds and sometimes are years removed from bedside care, said Alonzo, assistant head nurse for the hospital's medical and surgi-

Nurses from large metropolitan hospitals often have little trouble adjusting to the volume of patients and gravity of the injuries that Landstuhl handles daily, Alonzo said. But others find themselves in an environment that is difficult to prepare for, he said.

Alonzo recalls holding the hand of an Army staff sergeant in his 40s who lost sight in both eves after a makeshift bomb exploded near him in Baghdad last year.

"There is nothing you can say to make him feel better," Alonzo said. "Sometimes just being there and letting them know that you're there for them is the best thing."

In an unusual case, doctors examined a young Marine who had fallen out of a building and could not move his legs. Tests showed he was not paralyzed but suffered from a "conversion disorder." a nsychiatric condition that can inhibit motor movement after someone experiences a stressful event, Alonzo said

Maj. Angela Muzzy, a nurse with the 349th reserve unit who works in the hospital's intensive care unit delivers the same basic message to her patients, no matter if they appear coherent or not,

She tells them: "You're safe You're out of Iraq. You're in an American hospital. We're contacting your family," she said.

And when she is not helping soldiers deal with severe injures she concentrates on dealing with the carnage she sees by praying. traveling on her days off and talking with people trained to help nurses with job-related stress.

Overcoming stigma, dealing with trauma

DOD study: Troops who need counseling most are least likely to seek it

BY JON R. ANDERSON Stars and Strings

ARLINGTON, Va. - Military health officials are trying to figure out how to reduce the stigma for troops seeking mental health care, but concede they're fighting an uphill battle.

"Stigma is a real problem. It's a societal issue, but it is much more pronounced in the military," said Col. Thomas Burke, one of the Pentagon's top psychiatrists and the director of mental health policy for the Defense Department.

"There is a perception among the troops that seeking mental health care means you're weak or a coward and frankly, we in the military kind of foster that attitude," said Burke. "We give medals to the soldiers who charge the hill, but don't really recognize the day-to-day heroism of soldiers who take care of themselves - doing simple things like changing their socks and cleaning their weapons - doing whatever it takes to keep themselves in condition to do the mission

A recent Defense Department study looking at combat troops returning from Iraq found that soldiers and Marines who need counseling the most are least likely to seek it. As many as 16 percent of the troops questioned admitted to symptoms of severe depression, Post Combat Stress Disorder and emotionally detached - these kinds of reother problems

Of those, six out of 10 questioned felt their leaders would treat them differently and that fellow troops would lose confi dence in them. As many as 65 percent said they'd "be seen as weak.

Army psychiatrist Col. Charles Hoge, lead author of the study, said, "Our most important finding was this concern about stigma and barriers to care, that is, the number of soldiers who have mental health issues who don't seek care.

Troops returning from combat soon will undergo two mandatory mental health assessments - one right away, one three to five months later - to make sure they aren't suffering long-term trauma, Department of Defense officials announced in Jan-

But self-indentifying and pursuing further help might still be difficult for some. Hoge, who is head of psychiatry at Walter Reed Army Institute of Research in Silver Spring, Md., said the key to reducing that stigma is "making mental health care more routine. If the troops view mental health care as routine as getting an X-ray. they'll be more likely to get it."

What soldiers need to understand is that stress reactions — difficulty sleeping, reliving incidents in your mind, feeling actions are very common and really expect-ed after combat," said Hoge.

Wherever they go, they should remember that what they're feeling "is normal and it's nothing to be ashamed of.

The war on labels

But even in the combat zone, officials have made a conscious effort not to call troops seeking mental heath care "pa-

"It's a hotly debated decision within the mental health community," said Burke, "and it cuts the very heart of the stigma

On one hand, he said, calling those troops "patients" in the long run could help reduce the sense that problems coping with the horrors of combat are no different than bleeding from a gunshot wound.

On the other hand studies have shown that the more troops are treated as sick rather than simply experiencing normal reactions — the more likely they are to wrestle with mental health problems over time The biggest barrier to reducing stigma in the military, he said, is confidentiality. "The military is in an ugly situation. In the civilian world, confidentiality is pretty strict," said Burke.

Firm laws are in place protecting patient privacy, "but all those provisions make ex-ceptions for the military.

You're never going to have complete confidentiality in the military system," said Burke, "That doesn't mean we open our books to anyone who wants to look we are indeed very, very careful to safe-guard privacy as much as possible — but the truth is, there is a big hole in the wall of confidentiality that will never close.

To ease those concerns, last year military officials opened up limited confidential counseling outside of the military health care system through its One Source program with civilian providers. And last week, officials announced they would add a second round of mental health screening a few months after troops return from com-

Officials are also in early discussions to replicate the National Institute for Mental Health's recent "Real Men, Real Depression" public awareness campaign within the military.

For any program to work, said Burke, troops and military leaders need to understand "mental illness is not the kind of unsolvable problem that it once was." The message he tries to ram home is that usually it's not a matter of "problem soldiers, but soldiers with problems."

Navy P-3 responds to distress call near Malta

SIGONELLA, Sicily - When a distress call came in at 3 am Thursday, it only took about two hours for a Navy P-3 Orion crew from Naval Air Station Sigonella, Sicily, to reach the site of an ex-ploded cargo vessel off the coast of Malta. The 11-member Orion crew

Hansen, a weather forecaster with De-tachment 1 of the 7th Weather Squadron in Würzburg, received the medal for saving a 7-year-old boy from two attacking Rottweil-ers in his neighborhood outside Würzburg in January 2004. U.S. to pull 15,000 troops out of Iraq

President Bush and officials have said the pace of withdrawal will depend upon how quickly Iraqi forces

can be trained and equipped to maintain security there.

BY BRADLEY GRAHAM

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Buoyed by successful Iraqi elections, Pentagon authorities have decided to start reducing the level of U.S. forces in Iraq next month by about 15,000 trops, down to about 135,000, Deputy Defense Secretary Paul Wolfowitz said Thursday.

In early December, Pentagon officials announced which units would be held over in Iraq.

They included about 4,400 soldiers from the Army's 2nd Brigade of the 25th Infantry Division, based in Schofield Baracks, Hawaii — which was supposed to return home in the beginning of January — and about 3,500 soldiers from the 2nd Brigade of the 1st Cavalry Division, Fort Hood, Texas, which was supposed to return home in November.

About 2,300 Marines from the 31st Marine Expeditionary Unit off of the Essex Expeditionary Strike Group will also be held over, including Marines from Okinawa, Hawaii and California, who were due to return home in January and will now come out March 15. defense officials said.

A smaller unit of about 160 soldiers from the 66th Transport Company, based in Kaiserslautern, Germany, was also extended from January to mid-March. In addition, about 1,500 paratroopers of the 82nd Airborne Brigade were sent to Iraq from their home base at Fort Bragg, N.C., for a four-month stint.

Just when U.S. forces can begin to withdraw from Iraq has generated intense political debate that has accelerated since Sunday's elections. President Bush and other administration officials have said the pace of withdrawal will depend upon how quickly Iraqi forces can be trained and equipped to maintain security there.

As a sign this effort continues to lag. Gen. Richard Myers, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, reported at Thursday's hearing that less than one-third of the troops and police that the Pentagon says have been trained and equipped are adequately prepared to handle most threats.

Democratic senators pressed Thursday

Democratic senators pressed Thursday for the administration to outline a clear exit strategy. While Republicans on the committee appeared more willing to accept the administration's wait-and-see approach, several joined with Democrats in seeking more definite information about the number of Iraqi security forces currently ready and clearer estimates of the size of the insurgency. Both Wolfowitz and Myers appeared to struggle for answers.

The Pentagon officials displayed a chart showing a total of 136,065 Iraqi forces "trained equipped" or "operational" as of Mondago, including $56,284 army troops and $7,290 including $56,284 army troops and $7,290 cm, where also reported a surge in recruits over the past two days of 2,500 a day.

But under questioning, Myers said only

mtain were deployable, meaning they "can go anywhere and do anywhere and do anywhere and do anywhere and any more confidence about the Iraqi army figures than the police ones. Wolfowitz, in turn, acknowledged high absenter rates in many units, reaching about 40 percent in the Iraqi army.

Both officials cautioned against focus ing on numbers, saying capability is more important. But both conceded that the Pentagon still lacked clear ways of assessing such critical Iraqi capabilities as leadership and motivation.

"We're going to have to move to a way where we can start tracking the capability." Myers said. "This is not easy."

The general also fumbled for estimates on the size of the insurgency under questioning first by Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., the committee's ranking minority member.

Myers said that coming up "with accurate estimates is just very, very difficult in this type of insurgency," in which common criminals are mixed with foreign fighters, Islamic extremists and former members of Saddam Hussein's govern-

This drew a sharp rebuke from two senior committee Republicans — Sen. John Warner, R-Va., the chairman, and Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz. — who said the public was due some estimate.

"I am disappointed that you don't have even a rough estimate of the number of insurgents," McCain said. "I don't know how you defeat an insurgency unless you have some handle on the number of people that you are facing."

Shiites with Iran ties lead Iraq vote count

Two soldiers killed in roadside attacks

BAGHDAD — A new, partial tally of votes Friday from Iraq's landmark elections showed a Shiite coalition whose leaders have close ties to Iran rolling up a strong lead over other tickets, including that of interim Prime Minister Ayad Allawi.

The United Iraqi Alliance, which has the endorsement of Iraq's top Shite clerics, won more than two-thirds of the 3.3 million votes counted so far, the election commission said. Allawisticket was running second with more than 579,700 votes.

In new violence, gumen kid-napped an Italian journalist in a hail of gunfire from a central Baghdad street where she had been conducting interviews. Two U.S. soldiers were killed and eight wounded by roadside bombs in northern Iraq, and an Iraqi contractor working with the American military was gunned down in a drive-by shooting Friday west of the capital.

The new election figures represented partial returns from 10 of Iraq's 18 provinces, said Hamdiyah al-Husseini, an election commission official. All 10 provinces have heavy Shitte populations, and the Alliance had been expected to run strong in those areas.

The Alliance also won the most out of the 265,000 votes cast by Iraqis abroad, with 36 percent, compared to 29 percent for the

U.S. deaths in Iraq

The Associated Press

As of Thursday, at least 1,441 members of the U.S. military have died since the beginning of the Iraq war in March 2003, according to an Associated Press count. At least 1,103 died as a result of hostile action, the Defense Department said. The figures include four military civilians.

The AP count is two higher than the Defense Department's tally, last updated at 10 a.m. EST Thursday.

The British military has reported 86 deaths; Italy, 20; Po-land, 16; Ukraine, 16; Spain, 11; Bulgaria, seven; Slovakia, three; Estonia, Thailand and the Netherlands, two each; and Denmark, El Salvador, Hungary, Latvia and Kazakhstan one death each.

Rumsfeld says he offered to resign twice last year

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld says he submitted his resignation twice to President Bush during last year's Abu Ghraib prisoner abuse scandal

"I felt that he ought to make the decision as to whether or not I stayed on," Rumsfeld said Thursday on CNN's "Larry King Live" program. "He made that decision and said he did want me to stay Rumsfeld indicated that he felt a measure of responsibility for the scandal. At a Senate hearing in May, Rumsfeld said the abuses occurred on his watch and "I take full responsibility.'

"The problem is, this kind of thing occurs in prisons across the country and across the world," he said. "And you have to know it's therefore the training and the dis-cipline and the doctrine has to be such that you anticipate that risk. And clearly, that wasn't done to the extent it should."

The release of photographs last spring depicting American sol-diers abusing prisoners at the Abu Ghraib prison in Iraq triggered worldwide condemnation, particularly in the Arab world. Rumsfeld told Congress at the time that he would quit if he felt he could no longer serve effectively, but he also said he would not resign simply to please his critics and political opponents.

Some had speculated last fall that if Bush was re-elected he would replace Rumsfeld, but in December the president said he wanted him to stay. Rumsfeld told CNN that when Bush asked him to stay for a second term. they did not discuss whether it would be for the full four years.

Pentagon on Thursday, Rumsfeld said he may skip an appearance at a security conference in Germany next week because of a lawsuit there accusing him of war crimes for the prisoner abuse

"It's something that we have to take into consideration," he said when asked whether the war crimes suit was a factor in weighing whether to attend the Munich Conference on Security Policy, an annual gathering of government defense officials, lawmakers and others from Europe and elsewhere

Rumsfeld said he had not vet made a final decision on attendthe two-day conference, where an address by the U.S. defense secretary typically is a high-light. Last year, Rumsfeld stoutly defended the U.S. invasion of Iraq, which was highly unpopular in much of Europe

Special Ops Cody isn't a regu-lar GI, and he's no ordinary Joe. Special Ops Cody is a star.

The $39 action figure apparent-kidnapped in an insurgent hoax to drum up American alarm has done well for himself: He's selling on eBay anywhere from around $100 to more than $230 and he's even scarce to be found downrange.

A blurred photo posted on a Web site Tuesday by a group called the Mujahedeen Brigades was alleged to be military man John Adam, whom Iraqi insurgents pledged to behead if coalition-held prisoners weren't released. The U.S. military, however, denied that a soldier was missing. Then Liam Cusack, marketing coordinator of Dragon Models USA, recognized that determined jaw and vacant eyes as those of his Cody, a toy the company manufactured for the Army and Air Force Exchange Service for sale at bases in the Middle East.

Saddam's heartland still up for grabs

BY TERRY BOYD

Stars and Stripes

FORWARD OPERATING BASE WILSON, Iraq — In the afterglow of the elections, there's still a jagged war going on in central Iraq.

But even before the elections, American soldiers already were refining tactics, relying more on the fine art of persuasion and less on crude force.

During their year here, 1st Infantry Division soldiers have achieved myriad small victories in this huge sector, stretching from Saddam's hometown of Tikrit north toward Mosul, and east nearly to the Iranian border.

Rocket and mortar attacks have decreased.

In the last few days, a farmer warned U.S. soldiers of a particularly lethal four-artillery-shell bomb on the road to Ad-Dawr.

"That would have killed somebody," said Master Sgt. Steven Zeibarth, noncommissioned officer in charge at Forward Operating Base Wilson, base for elements of the 1st Squadron, 4th U.S. Cavalry Regiment.

"Our intelligence seems to have been getting better over the last three months," said 1st Lt. Ben Butler, who leads Troop C scouts. Iraqi army troops are starting to become a viable force, at least here.

Finally, elections are tangible proof of a drift toward democracy, Zeibarth said: "Until this point, everything has been U.S. government-driven."

But soldiers and officers here emphasize elections took place under special circumstances. Before election day, "we had abslutely everything out," said Capt. Paul Krattiger, commander of the Schweinfurt, Germany-based Troop C. Bradley fighting vehicles, Abrams tanks and Iraqi/American patrols hog-tied the enemy, Krattiger said.

It's an effort the United States can sustain for only so long.

Before 3rd Infantry Division soldiers from Fort Benning, Ga., replace them, Troop C soldiers still have raids to conduct, local leaders to cultivate and Iraqi police to build up or take down.

During the year they've been here, soldiers and officers have seen more and more Iraqis turning their back on the insurrection in 1.4 Cav's huge portion of the Sunni Triangle. But it's difficult for soldiers on the ground to appreciate the trend amid daily attacks.

On Monday, a roadside bomb exploded next to a Bradley as it patrolled in Ad-Dawr, just outside FOB Wilson, leaving Staff Sgt. Reginald Graham with a concussion. On Tuesday, somebody tossed a hand grenade at a patrol, slightly wounding Spc. Javier Aieular.

His troops fight insurgents "nightly," Krattiger said.

During a Tuesday evening interview, Krattiger said he was getting the feeling "something's going on. They're ..."

Iraqi elections may be over, but little has changed for 1st Infantry Division troops operating in central Iraq Staff Sct. Patrick Shirer, left, and Staff Sct. Kevin Harris, scotts from Charlie Troop, 1st Squardon, 4th Cavalry Regiment, get ready to search houses in a tiny village north of Tikrit. Acting on a tip, the unit arrested an arms dealer nearby in January, but found nothing this week on a follow-up search.

Before he could complete his thought, a deep explosion rocked the base

Ordnance disposal soldiers were destroying munitions. But half an hour later, in the middle of his dinner, the 31-year-old officer rushed out of the chow hall when medics brought in Aigular.

U.S. forces can counterpunch, killing or capturing attackers, Krattiger said.

But they can win only by convincing Iraqis that the better their relationship with American troops and the new government, the better off they'll be.

Kicking down doors is not the answer, he said. "Brute force is not going to win this war."

Instead, American soldiers are searching for an antidote to brute

One of the most effective seems to be showing locals what the insurgency has wrought.

Last December, roadside bombers in Ad-Dawr missed their intended target, a Bradley, but managed to kill three civilians — a man, a wife and their friend.

He took photos of the bodies, shredded by a bomb built around a 155 mm artillery shell, Krattiger said.

Then he passed photos around nearby Ad-Dawr, the message being, "This is what happened when they attacked coalition forces, but killed innocent civilians," Krattiger said. "You allowed them to be in your midst. We were protected and it didn't do anything to us. But it killed three people."

"People cried. People knew them. The whole time I've been here, I've never seen such an extreme reaction."

Just after that attack, guerrillas started hitting Iraqi army positions in Al-Dawr. His troops countered with a midnight ambush, killing one and wounding three, Butler said.

Word spread around Ad-Dawr the next morning that the men were gunned down "while they were shopping," Butler said. So soldiers circulated photos of the dead man wearing an ammo belt.

"We said, 'Look, you don't go Perhaps 5 percent of the insurgents here are foreign financiers, 5 percent outside trainers, and 90 percent homegrown Saddam loyalists, according to Krattiger.

Days after the election, 1-4 Cav troops are still kicking in doors. But the majority of the day is spent supporting proven police units, Iraqi soldiers and the occasional Iraqi who says "enough" to insurgents.

On Tuesday, Butler led a Troop C mission north from FOB Wilson, covering perhaps 100 miles. The mission included everything from talking to Iraqi police in Al-Alam about moving concrete barriers left over from the elections, to doing "cordon knocks," or mini-raids, looking for weapons in Talal Sabot.

About noon, Butler's soldiers stoldiers stoldiers stoldiers the Civil Education Center and its founder, Raid Khutab. A private-by funded half-way house, the center tries to rehabilitate prisoners freed from Abu Ghraib and Bocce prisons.

Despite the elections, despite the emergence of people such as Raid Khutab, it's too simplistic to say things are getting better here, or getting worse, soldiers and officers agreed. Only changing.

"It's a brand new fight for all of us," Krattiger said. If there is an emerging trend, it may be that soldiers finally have ordinary Iraqis — even in this Sunni stronghold asking themselves if the only thing insurgents have to offer is more violence.

Gonzales takes reins at Justice Department

BY JESSE J. HOLLAND The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Reporting for his first day as U.S. attorney general, Alberto Gonzales told Justice Department employees their priority would remain combatting terrorism, "but we will do so in a way that's consistent with our values.

Gonzales was opposed by many Democrats because of his work on administration polices they faulted in the abuse of prisoners in Iraq. Speaking to employees Friday, he alluded to the controversy but emphasized his own heritage as the grandson of Mexican immigrants and other up-from-poverty stories among members of President Bush's Cabinet. He said they had lived the American dream case that it falls upon the shoulders of the attorney general to ensure that that dream is available," said Gonzales, who is the nation's first Hispanic attorney general.

His plate is already overflowing with serious tasks: Lobbying Congress for reauthorization of the USA Pa-

He reminded Justice employees that Bush has said their top job is protecting the United States from future acts of terror

"But we will do so in a way that's consistent with our values, consistent with our legal obligations," said Gonzales, speaking in an ornate atrium near his new office.

Priest's fate with jury

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. - A jury resumed deliberating the fate of defrocked priest Paul Shanley on Friday, weighing conflicting views on the repressed memories his accuser said came to him decades after the sexual abuse allegedly took place.

The jurors received the case Thursday afternoon and deliberated for 30 minutes before the judge sent them home for the day.

The accuser said his memories of the abuse were repressed for 20 years and then resurfaced when the Boston church abuse scandal broke in 2002.

But Shanley's lawyer, Frank Mondano, said in his closing argument Thursday that they were false memories that were planted by a friend, who also had accused Shanley of abuse, and then were exploited by attorneys.

Actor Ossie Davis found dead in Fla. hotel

BY HILLEL ITALIE
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Ossie Davis, the actor distinguished for roles dealing with racial injustice on stage, screen and in real life, has died, an aide said Friday. He was 87.

Davis, the husband and partner of actress Ruby Dee, was found dead Friday in his hotel room in Miami Beach, Fla, according to officials there. He was making a film called "Retirement," said Arminda Thomas, who works in his office in suburban New Rochelle, N.Y.

Davis, who wrote, acted, directed and produced for the theater and Hollywood, was a central figure among black performers of the last five decades. He and Dec celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1998 with the publication of a dual autobiography. "In This Life Toeether."

Miami Beach police spokesman Bobby Hernandez said Davis' grandson called the police shortly before 7 a.m. when his grandfather would not open the door to his room at the Shore Club Hotel. Davis was found dead, and there does not appear to heart few Jaker Hernwede soid.

Davis had just started his movie on Monday, said Michael Livingston, his Hollywood agent. "I'm absolutely shocked," said Livingston. "He was the most wonderful man I've ever known. Such a classy, kindly man."

His wife had gone to New Zealand to make a movie there, Livingston said.

Davis and Dee first appeared together in the plays "Jeb," in 1946, and "Anna Lucasta," in 1946-47. Davis' first film, "No

Both had key roles in the television se-

In 2004, Davis and Dee were among the artists selected to receive the Kennedy Center Honors.

When not on stage or on camera, Davis and Dee were deeply involved in civil rights issues and efforts to promote the cause of blacks in the entertainment industry. They nearly ran afoul of the anti-Communist witch-hunts of the early 1950s, but were never openly accused of any wrongdoing.

His career as an actor began in 1939 with the Rose McClendon Players in Harlem, then the center of black culture in America. There, Davis met or mingled with some of the most influential figures of the time, including W.E.B. DuBois, A. Philip Randolph, Langston Hughes and Richard Wright.

He also had what he described in the book as a "flirtation with the Young Communist League," which he said essentially ended with the onset of World War II. Davis spent nearly four years in service, mainly as a surgical technician in an Army hospital in Liberia, serving both wounded troops and local inhabitants.

Back in New York in 1946, Davis debuted on Broadway in "Jeb," a play about a returning soldier. His co-star was Dee, whose budding stage career had paralleled his own.

In December 1948, on a day off from rehearsals from another play, "The Smile of the World," Davis and Dee took a bus to New Jersey to get married. They already were so close that "it felt almost like an appointment we finally got around to keeping," Dee wrote in "In This Life Together."

Mother: Speech hug was 'between 2 moms'

BY DAVID JACKSON The Dallas Morning News

WASHINGTON — When Janet Norwood of Pflugerville, Texas, wrote President Bush about her son's death in Iraq, she had no idea she would become part of an emotional, tearing, lobally letelysed hug — with an Iraq woman who had recently cast her first vote. "It was just an exchange between two

Janet Norwood wrote Bush in December,

"We had absolutely no idea who was going to be in that box," Norwood said. After the speech, she spoke with Bush backstage. She gave him a set of prayer

ROME, Ga. — The Rev. Abraham Kennard shared his dream of a string of Christian resorts with a few of his fellow black ministers. They told a few more. And the few more told a few more.

Soon, congregations nationwide — many with only a few dozen members — were holding fish fries, sponsoring cake walks and throwing carnivals to raise the $3,000 they needed to invest in Kennard's company. For their small investment the faithful were assured, they would eventually get their money back more than 100 times over. But prosecutors say they were duped. Kennard. 46. was charged with bilking nearly 89 million from 1,600 churches in 41 states in just over a year. His month-long trial on 132 counts—from money laundering to tax evasion to mail fraud—ended Thursday and his fate now lies with a jury, which was scheduled to begin deliberations Friday.

Kennard, 46, was charged wit

Greenspan on deficit

LONDON — U.S. Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan said Friday that a variety of factors from a weaker dollar to tougher budget discipline in Congress may finally start to restrain the explosive growth in the American trade deficit.

Greenspan, however, cautioned that the global economy is essentially in uncharted waters given the unprecedented level of economic interaction between countries and thus any forecast of where the trade deficit is headed could prove to be wrong.

Surgery planned

DALLAS — One of the Egypticately separated more than a year ago will undergo reconstructive surgery on Monday to help complete his skull, and his brother will have the same surgery in March, doctors said Thursday.

Ahmed and Mohamed Ibrahim, born joined at the tops of their heads, were separated at a Dallas hospital in October 2003 in a risky 34-hour procedure.

The boys, now 3½, are walking and talking after months of rehabilitation, but they still wear helmets to protect their brains.

FBI's system criticized

WASHINGTON — Lawmakers criticized FBI Director Robert Mueller on Thursday for continued problems with a costly computer project that was supposed to dramatically improve management of terrorism and other cases.

Mueller acknowledged he does not yet know how much the FBI's Virtual Case File will cost beyond the $170 million already budgeted and largely spent, or when FBI agents and analysts will have it on their computers.

N. Korea: U.S. bases at risk if war comes

BY SANG-HUN CHOE The Associated Press

SEOUL, South Korea - North Korea will turn U.S. military bases in the region into a "sea of fire" if war breaks out on the Korean peninsula, North Korean media on Friday quoted a communist officer as saying.

The North's state-run news media highlighted the comment hours after South Korea released a new defense policy paper that revealed a U.S. reinforcement plan to dispatch 690,000 troops and 2,000 warplanes if war breaks out in Korea. North Korea's saber-rattling rhetoric comes as the isolated North is urging its military to prenare for what it calls a U.S. plan to invade. Washington and its allies say they are trying to end the North's nuclear weapons programs through multinational disarmament talks.

"If the U.S. imperialists ignite flames of war, we will first of all strike all bases of U.S. imperialist aggressors and turn them into a sea of fire," North Korea's Central Radio quoted officer Hur Ryong as saving, according to the U.S. troops of the 728th Military Police Battalion salute to U.S. nation al flag during Task Force Warfighters' welcome home ceremony at the U.S. military base in Taegu on Friday. The United States will dispatch 690,000 troops and 2,000 warplanes if war breaks out on the Korean isula, said South Korea's defense white paper on Friday.

South Korean news agency Yon-

Hur was also quoted as saving that the North Korean military will "thoroughly incinerate the aggressor elements that collude with the U.S. imperialists," in an Korea and Japan, both of which host U.S. military bases.

Hur made his comment on Wednesday during a debate in Pvongyang on leader Kim Jong Il's "army-first" policy that stresses military strength

Earlier Friday, South Korea re-leased its new defense white paper that mirrored its efforts to redefine half-century-old confrontation with the communist North as well as adjust its alliance with the United States

The white paper, which has been updated for the first time in four years, removes 10-year-old references to North Korea being the South's "main enemy," though it still calls the North a "direct military threat.'

The commitment of U.S. troops in the event of war appears aimed at easing concerns that Washing ton's plan to use U.S. troops in South Korea as rapid regional redeployments could create a security vacuum in the world's last remaining Cold War flash point.

Iran attack 'not on the agenda,' Sec. Rice says

The Associated Press

LONDON — U.S. Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice said a U.S. attack on Iran "is simply not on the agenda at this point," despite the United States' continued criticism of Iran's suspected nuclear weapons ambitions and human rights record.

Speaking in London, the first stop on a weeklong tour of Euro-pean capitals, Rice would not say whether the United States supports a change of government in Iran. U.S. Deputy Secretary of State Richard Armitage has said re-gime change is not the U.S. goal.

Rice said there is broad international agreement that Iran cannot be allowed to use a civilian nuclear power project to conceal a weapons program — a charge which Tehran denies

After a meeting with British Foreign Secretary Jack Straw, Rice was asked directly during a news conference whether the United States might attack Iran.
"The question is simply not on the agenda at this point," she responded

"We believe particularly in regard to the nuclear issue that while no one ever asks the American president to take all his options, any of his options off the table, that there are plenty of diplomatic means at our disposto get the Iranians to finally live up to their international obli gations," she said. Asked during the plane trip here Thursday whether the Unit-ed States should get more directly involved in the talks the Europeans are having with Iran, she said, "The Iranians know what they need to do. It's not the absence of anybody's involvement that is keeping the Iranians from knowing what they need to do. Earlier, Rice met with British Prime Minister Tony Blair, the United States' closest ally in Irag, holding her first meeting with a foreign leader since taking over from Colin Powell as America's top diplomat. Their 90-minute breakfast meeting at Blair's Downing Street office covered Iraq, the Middle East and other subjects. Rice thanked Blair for Britain's support in Iraq "as we work to support the Iraqi people in their quest and most especially ... as we try to bring to the Israelis and the Palestinians a chance for a lasting peace."

Later in the day, standing alongside German Chancellor Gerhard Schroeder in Berlin,

Rice urged the world community to show support for "the people of Iraq who, on Sunday demon-strated they are prepared to set aside fear and their past and try to build a new and free society."

"Now is the time for our diplomacy to put our alliance to work in the service of great goals and great opportunities that stand before us," she said.

Afghans searching for plane

KABUL, Afghanistan - NATO forces on Friday suspended for the night their ground and air search for an Afghan passenger jet carrying 104 people, in-cluding about 3 Americans and 16 other foreigners. after it disappeared from radar screens during a snow storm near the mountain-ringed capital.

As temperatures plunged overnight, relatives and officials expressed growing fear that any of the missing can be found alive after what could turn out to be the war-ravaged country's deadliest aviation disaster. The Kam Air Boeing 737-200 took off Thursday from the western city of Herat bound for Kabul, but was unable to land because of poor visibility. The airline initially said the plane was diverted to neighboring Pakistan, but officials there said it never reached their airspace.

Afghanistan's NATO peacekeeping force sent heliconters and ground teams to scour an area southeast of the city, where officials said the plane was last locat-Thursday afternoon, but they returned empty-handed.

NATO and Afghan officials denied reports that the wreckage had been located, and said they would widen their search when it resumed early Saturday.

Large acid leak in Sweden hurts 13

BY MATTIAS KAREN

The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — About 11,000 tons of sulfuric acid leaked from a chemical plant in southern Sweden on Friday, forming a poisonous gas cloud over the city of Helsingborg that forced citizens to stay indoors for four hours, officials said.

Officials said at least 13 people were injured, but none seriously. No fatalities were reported.

The acid leaked out shortly after 4 a.m. from the Kemira Kemi factory in central Helsingborg, a port city on Sweden's southwestern coast 370 miles south of the capital, Stockholm.

coast 370 miles south of the capital, Stockholm.

Large sections of the city were blocked off to traffic Friday morning, and ferry traffic to Denmark was canceled. By 11 a.m., most streets were reopened, except for the blocks surrounding the chemical plant.

Residents had initially been warned to stay indoors and not go outside, but by the morning, the cloud was beginning to evaporate and the danger lessening.

Carina Mohlin, director of the Helsingborg
Lasarett hospital, said six factory employees were taken to the hospital, some with teary eyes and respiratory problems, but none with serious injuries.

Two police officers and five others were also taken in with similar symptoms, but all 13 had been cleared from the hospital by 11 a.m., she said "They were taken through a decontamination tent," Mohlin said. "They were all nearby when it happened, and were coughing." No other injuries were reported. Christina Didner, a pharmacist with the Sweden Poisons Information Center said exposure to low concentrations of sulfuric acid "could cause teary eves, an irritated nose and throat and some coughing. If you notice these symptoms, just go back inside."

Romy Moeller, a spokesman for the Helsingborg Rescue Service, said the leak was probably caused by a broken water pipe that softened the ground under the tank holding the acid. The unstable soil then apparently caused the tank to crack, he said.

Kemira Kemi officials could not immediately be reached for comment, but the company issued a statement saying its delivery of sulfuric acid would resume shortly.

Moeller said the sulfuric acid leaked into a nearby harbor, mixing with the water and creating a large gas cloud that drifted out over the water

Honest real estate

OSLO, Norway — A Norwegian real estate investor tired of glowing but inaccurate property adverisements opted for blunt honesty in offering an apartment for sale.

"Gruesome two-room apartment with balcony," said the advertisement posted on the Finn.no Internet portal this week. "A very worn-out apartment."

Arne Leo Soerlie, a professional real estate investor, said he had wasted so much time on exaggerated advertisements that he wanted to be truthful to spare others the same irritation

Doctor fakes insanity

OSLO, Norway — A Norwegian doctor called in for military service would have made the malingering Cpl. Klinger of "M*A*S*H" proud.

The doctor rubbed sour cream in his hair, poured sticky liqueur in his shoes and sat in a closet smoking 40 cigarettes at once in a bid to convince the military that he wasn't fit mentally for service, the Fredrikstad Blad newspaper reported Thursday.

As part of Norway's compulsory military service, veterans can be called back for refresher training or longer service.

It worked, too. He was so convincing that the military doctor alerted the national health authority about the man they had licensed to work as physician.

Now, the doctor is facing likely disciplinary action from the military and the medical board.

Vatican: Pope's health improving

The Associated Pre-

VATICAN CITY — Pope John Paul II's health is continuing to improve and he has begun eating, the Vatican said Friday, but it would not commit to the pope's weekly address on Sunday from the hospital treating him for the flu and respiratory troubles.

"The state of health of the Holy Father has improved," papal spokesman Joaquin Navarro-Valls told reporters, reading from a brief Vatican medical bulletin. He said tests confirmed that the 84-year-old pope's latest health crisis had stabilized, and that there was a "favorable evolution" of the breathing troubles he suffered earlier in the week.

It was unclear when the pope began taking food. Navarro-Valls, who refused to elaborate on virtually any point of the health bulletin, said only: "Certainly today, maybe yesterday evening, but certainly today." Underscoring the sense that the frail pontiff was not in immediate danger, Navarro-Valls said the Holy See would not issue another medical update until Mon-

But he would not confirm that John Paul would go ahead with his weekly address via an audio hookup from his papal suite at Rome's Gemelli Polytechnic hospital in place of his usual perch in a window high above St. Peter's Square.

Survey: '05 salary outlook almost flat

BY ANDREA COOMBES

CBS MarketWatch

SAN FRANCISCO — U.S. companies reported better-than-expected revenues in mid-2004, but that doesn't mean they're giving workers bigger salaries, according to the latest survey by World-atWork, a trade group for human-resource professionals.

Sixty percent of firms surveyed said revenues were higher in May through October compared with the same period a year earlier, according to the survey of 1,047 companies.

But despite the good news for a majority of companies, 69 percent said they weren't planning to change their salary budgets for

That means most employees can expect a 3.6 percent or 3.7 percent increase in salary this year, up only slightly from the 3.5 percent companies paid last year, according to the annual survey.

Raises averaged 3.5 percent in 2004, the same increase received in 2003 and a historic low for the 31-year survey.

Still, that average payout may improve: While 69 percent of companies said they wouldn't change their salary budgets, 24 percent said they would change their budget, and of those about 60 percent said they would increase salaries.

While the average salary hike certainly isn't stupendous, workers are benefiting a little more than a few years ago.

Nesrin Ozkaynak, center, and other employees package Kodak digital cameras at Eastman Kodak Co., in Rochester, N.Y., on Tuesday. Most U.S. employees will see only a small salary increase this year despite revenue increases. according to a survey.

"Just two years ago we had historic lows in merit budgets, so that increase alone is really good news." said Doug Grieser, a compensation manager at Worldat-Work, based in Scottsdale, Ariz. Average raises tend to mirror inflation, which rose 3.3 percent in 2004, as measured by the Labor Department's consumer price index.

Excluding food and steeply rising energy costs, the consumer price index rose 2.2 percent last

Salary increases have been declining since the early 1990s, when they averaged about 5.6 percent and inflation was about 5.4 percent.

In 1981, when inflation was running about 10.3 percent, salary raises averaged 10.6 percent, according to WorldatWork.

A shrinking portion of workers are getting salary increases. Only about 84 percent of workers will get raises in 2005, down from about 87 percent of employees last year.

But, if last year is any indication, that forecast, too, may prove to be on the low end. In 2003, companies projected that just 78 percent of their workers would get salary increases in 2004, but those firms ended up raising pay for 87 percent of workers.

While employees shouldn't expect much in the way of salary increases, the outlook for bonuses is improving.

Companies say they'll give non-exempt hourly workers (non-exempt means workers eligible for overtime pay) bonuses that average 5.6 percent of their base salary, up from the 4.7 percent awarded in 2004.

Bonus pay includes incentives to individual workers as well as companywide awards programs. Non-exempt salaried workers can expect bonuses averaging 6 percent of base pay, up from 5.4 percent last year, while exempt salaried workers should receive an average of 12.4 percent of pay, up from 11.8 percent last year, and officer and executive workers should snag bonuses averaging 35 percent of base pay. up

The increases signal the ongoing move toward pay based on performance. "Back in 2001, 66 percent of the companies said they have some type of variable pay program in place," Grieser from 34.4 percent.

"That increased to 77 percent of the organizations in 2004."

Companies' revenue increases may be spurring that shift.

"Revenue is up, and pay-for-performance programs [often] tie to reaching certain revenue targets," Grieser said, adding that a WorldatWork survey last year found that a top objective companies cited for their pay-for-performance plans was improving financial performance or upping revenues.

"If you look at those new 2005 budgeted projections, basically they're saying (to workers) 'we'll give more incentive dollars to you for continuing the increase in revenue,' " Grieser said.

"Companies are producing more revenue so they have more dollars to allocate to these incentive plans."

Credit pluses, minuses

MarketWatch

NEW YORK — Nothing beats using your credit card when it comes to protection of your purchases.

That's something on which financial experts generally agree, whether you're buying groceries, paying for items online or making a big purchase like a car or naving a college tuition bill.

Credit-card transactions are pottected under the Fair Credit Billing Act. It's this law that allows you to dispute charges made on your account, including things such as late or unacceptable merchandise, unfulfilled services and even fraud.

But watch out! Your credit-card company may be sending you convenience checks. You write them out exactly like checks from your checking account, except the money is taken from your credit card instead.

These check advances, however, are treated as cash advances and are not protected like regular credit transactions. You'll notice that on your monthly card statement, only the check number will be listed — not the person or business to whom you wrote it.

Using those cash advance checks can be a financial pain. Most cash advances carry up-

Most cash advances carry upfront fees of 2 percent to 4 percent of the amount advanced. In addition, the interest charges which may be more than a credtic card's regular interest rate of 18 percent or so — start accumullating as soon as the ATM or cashier has deposited the cash in your hand. Some lenders may be added to the cash of the cash for you can begin paying off the higher-interest balance for cash advances.

To find out what you'll really pay for cash advances, check your monthly credit-rad statements for the specific fees and other charges associated with cash advances — the law requires card issuers to disclose such information.

Museum gets bones

ME PRESQUE ISLE — After years without the one must-have for a science museum, the Northern Maine Museum of Science is getting some dinosaurs.

The museum recently acquired two large dinosaur bones from the Museum of the Rockies in Montana, said Kevin McCartney, a geology professor at the University of Maine in Presque Isle. The bones— a tibia from a hadrosaur "duck-billed" dinosaur and a partial triceratops skull — weigh in at about 200 pounds each.

Gov. saves some trees

HASTINGS — Mike Johanns is out as Nebraska's governor, but his stationery will stay.

Gov. Dave Heineman said he would have his name printed at the bottom of Johanns' stationery. To do otherwise would be wasteful. Heineman said.

"That's just one small way for me to send a message to every single agency. Let's watch our pennies and if we watch our pennies together, ultimately, we can save millions," he said.

Heineman said the state also would continue handing out state maps with photos of Johanns and his wife on them.

stinks

And they're right.

More than 70 have transferred from Ocean City Elementary because an aging and outmoded sewage treatment plant next door is emitting a foul odor.

"The smell affects us physically as well as the operation of our school," said Principal Debbie Boutwell. She said the school's budget is affected because out of 77 children who received zoning waivers not to attend the school." Ocited the smell as the prason.

70 cited the smell as the reason.

Okaloosa County officials said it would be another three years before the treatment plant could be closed.

PAI PHILADELPHIA — Villanova University, stumpi y criticism from students, alumni and others, removed a plaque honoring a history professor who — suffering from postpartum depression — killed her disabled infant daughter.

Mine Ener, 38, who committed suicide in a Minnesota jail less than a month after slitting her baby's throat in August 2003, taught at the suburban Philadelphia university's Center for Arab and Islamic Studies. The university will instead organize a mental-health symposium to honor her memory.

Climbing ban upheld

RENO — A federal judge in Reno has upheld a climbing ban at Cave Rock on Lake Tahoe's east shore.

The Jan. 28 ruling by U.S. District Judge Howard McKibben upholds a management plan adopted by the U.S. Forest Service in 2003 to prohibit rock climbing on the landmark that is held sacred by the Washoe Tribe.

McKibben rejected a lawsuit filed last year by The Access Fund, a Colorado-based advocacy group for climbers. Among other things, the suit argued the ban was unconstitutional because it promotes the closing of public lands for religious purposes.

Firefighters struggling

BOSTON — Most firefighters who died fighting blazes in recent years were working under substandard conditions, in part because of delays, or had entered buildings where there was no one to save, according to a Boston Globe analysis published Monday.

The newspaper examined federal investigative reports on 52 fires around the country that killed 80 firefighters from 1997 to

Shadow steps

It found that in just 27 of the fires, four firefighters were able to get to the scene within 6 minutes, the minimum force recommended by the National Fire Protection Association. The manpower standard for safe and effective work at a building fire was met in only 18 of the fires.

There was a suspicion that someone might be inside the burning buildings at 14 of the fires, but only in six cases was there actually anyone inside, the Globe said.

Hip claim goes to court

RADFORD — A doctor who operated on the wrong hip of an 87-year-old woman is not solely to blame for the patient's subsequent ailments, the surgeon's lawyer told jurors.

Walt Peake said Ivory Andrews had a number of conditions before her broken hip, including a broken back, that contribute to her debilitated state but weren't caused by Dr. Kenneth Gray's error.

Andrews is seeking unspecified damages for the errant surgery, which was performed Dec. 16, 2003, and required a 45-day hospital stay.

DNA clears two

CHICAGO — More than a decade after two men were sentenced to life in prison for murder, prosecutors dismissed the charges Monday and set one of the men free, saying new DNA tests had failed to link them to the crime.

Dan Young Jr., 44, left the state prison in Pontiac on Monday. Harold Hill, 31, has three years left to serve for an unrelated armed robbery conviction, said Cook County State's Attorney spokesman John Gorman.

The charges were dropped after a series of new DNA tests failed to link either Hill or Young to the slaying of Kathy Morgan, the slaying of Kathy Morgan, whose raped and strangled body was found in an abandoned building after a fire in October 1990. Gorman said.

Kentucky hero uproar

PIKEVILLE — First, Daniel Boone's name was stripped from an eastern Kentucky parkway and replaced with that of a congressman. Then, the state legislature refused to put the famed frontiersman's name on an alternative highway.

It's no wonder his descendants are feeling slighted. "It's an insult to his family. It should be an insult to everyone who cares about the history of Kentucky," said Rochelle Cochran, president of the Boone Society, a national group of descendants.

She's launched a campaign to get Kentucky lawmakers to right what she sees as the wrong created in 2003 when former Gov. Paul Patton's administration changed the name of the Daniel Boone Parkway to the Hal Rogers Parkway in honor of a U.S. representative from Somerset Rogers is a Republican who uses his position Republican who uses his position of the pattern of the Republican who uses his position to eastern Kentucky to create roads through the mountains.

Race horses exhumed

W VERSAILLES — Crews worked under a court order Wednesday to exhume the remains of Wild-Eyed and Wicked, a champion saddlebred whose mysterious death has led to suspicions of sabotage in Kentucky's horse country.

The chestnut gelding — who twice won the saddlebred Triple Crown — was among five horses at the Double D Ranch in 2003 that had nearly identical circular wounds on the back of their left legs. Veterinarians believe someone injected them with some kind of substance.

The Public Advante's Office will be asking deliphone users to report on the location of dead zones via e-mail or phone. Cops arrested in bust

CHICAGO — Nine men, including four veteran Chicago police officers, were arrested and charged with stealing cocianie, money and guns from drug dealers. The arrests stem from a joint FBI and chicago police department operation, launched in July after investigators noticed a Fraternal Order of Police sticker on a car near a drug site.

Nude calendar knocked

CARMEL — A dozen women who posed in the buff to raise money for a fire station thought their efforts would be welcomed, with a chuckle, by this cash-strapped city.

But much to their surprise, the more than $40,000 raised by the Carmel Fire Belles' fund-raising calendar has been sharply rejected by city officials who say the cash is too hot to handle.

Accepting it, they say, could offend sensibilities and expose the city to costly sexual-harassment lawsuits.

"I feel belittled and insulted by the people responsible for bringing down a good cause and good people," calendar girl Paula Weber, 85, told city officials at a public hearing. The most senior of the models, Weber is pictured hiding coyly behind a pair of firefiblters' coveralls

Funeral dispute

BROWNSVILLE — A 30-year-old man accused of strangling his wife and then driving her body to Matamoros so he could claim she was killed by random violence in northern Mexico has asked to attend her funeral.

The attorney for Norberto Manzanares, charged with murder and jailed under a SI million bond, filed a request for his client to attend services of Gloria Manzanares, 30, said Cameron County District Attorney Armando Villalobos.

Villalobos said the county sheriff could grant Manzanares permission; no decision had been made late Wednesday.

the law have failed.

AL MONTGOMERY — The state filed a lawsuit accusing 79 drug companies of causing massive overcharges to the Alabama Medicaid Agency that sphoned away hundreds of millions of dollars from other health services for the needy.

The suit accuses the companies of intentionally misreporting average wholesale prices.

Attorney General Troy King said the practice artificially raised the cost Alabama Medicaid pays for drugs.

Same-sex unions ban

BOISE — For the second consecutive year, a proposal to ban same-sex marriages failed to pass the Idaho Senate. With 14 senators voting against the bill, conservative supporters were unable to muster the two-thirds majority needed to send the proposal to voters.

The amendment would have invalidated any type of marriage or civil union except those between a man and a woman

Failure to salute

DETROIT — Twenty-six police recruits are getting an extra lesson at the training academy this week: Salute the chief.

When Chief Ella Bully-Cummings recently met with the recruits, they failed to salute her, as called for in department rules. She ordered an extra week of training.

"The chief came into a room and no one came to attention," police spokesman James Tate

The rookie cops were also slow to salute the chief at their graduation last Thursday, he said.

Dear Lonely: If it will make you feel better, go to your friends and explain the truth

However, if they were truly your friends they would already be supporting you — and, in my opinion, you would be better off

Find friend to handle funeral plans

Dear Annie: I am an elderly bachelor and I have one sister, so I asked her to take care of my funeral arrangements when I go. I stressed repeatedly that that is all I want her to do. I set up arrangements to pay for everything

Since then, my sister repeatedly has done everything I have asked her not to do. She has taken it upon herself to sign for my mail and call my doctors without asking. She criticizes my friends and other family members, and is rude, arrogant, controlling and greedy. Her own children won't talk to her.

I am totally capable of looking after myself. I thought that she had changed after all these years, but I was wrong, I have tried talking to her, but nothing sinks in. Consequently, I am going to have to change all the arrangements I made regarding the funeral, will, etc., which I hate to do, but I guess I have no with these issues because you have removed her from the process. This may be extra work for you, but it will be worth it. Good luck.

Dear Annie: I read with great interest the letter from "Tired of Breathing Through My Mouth, who said his wife emitted an unusual scent. Consulting her physician was excellent advice. but the odor could be from a change in laundry detergent or fabric softener.

My father was an immaculate man but started smelling very strange

After some detective work, we found out that my mother had changed from her regular fabric softener to a cheaper one. It seems that his natural body scent, combined with the new softener, was worse than a skunk in a patch of stinkweed. After rewashing his entire wardrobe, Dad was back to his sweet-smelling self. - Cheap Isn't Everything

Dear Cheap: Thanks for the suggestion. Here is another: From Diamondhead, Miss.: I'm a retired chemist and can tell him his wife's odor is probably from her hairspray, mousse or makeup. I've noticed a similar smell on my wife and several other women in elevators and in church. As a test, his wife should wash her hair thoroughly and not put anything in it for a couple of hen the votes are counted in Iraq, it's almost certain that the majority of members of the assembly chosen to draft the new constitution will be Shiite Muslims, with a strong representation of Kurds. At that point, they will face a ques tion they must deal with quickly: What to do about the Sunnis? It's likely that the nation's Sunni minority will be grossly underrepresented in the outcome of Sunday's elections, in part because of insurgent intimidation and in part because of a deliberate boycott.

Sunni resistance to the concept of majority rule is real. Much of it is fed by a fear of Shiite and Kurdish retaliation for centuries of Sunni domination. The Sunni insurgency is not a national resistance movement, despite the efforts of some in the Arab world to portray it that way. But it is a full-fledged guerrilla campaign to deny democracy to Iraq

Some officials in Washington are contenting themselves with quibbling over what to call the present security emergency in Iraq

This is somewhat like the passengers

a long, bloody struggle. and crew on the Titanic arguing over whether the ship hit an iceberg or an ice floe. The resistance is coming from a significant portion of Sunnis who, if they are not actively involved in it, are tacitly supporting it.

The new government has two clear courses of action open to it, and a relatively short time to choose between them. The first approach is simple, and I'd advis against it. The Iraqi government could treat this challenge as a civil war and try to crush the insurgency by force of arms alone. We Americans did this once. It bloodletting in our nation's history. The majority imposed its will on the minority, and the nation looks the way it does today because of that choice.

The problem with a civil war analogy is that our Civil War was fought in a relative vacuum. With a weak Mexico to our south and a British Canadian colony to our north, we could shed blood with relatively little worry about immediate interference from our neighbors. Iraq does not have that luxury.

The second alternative is to act quickly to bring the homegrown members of th Sunni insurgency back into the tent and to the bargaining table as partners in crafting a constitution. In keeping members of the Sunni resistance out of the process, we run the risk of making the same mistake we made in Somalia. By giving the other side no option but to fight, we ensure a long, bloody strug-

There is good evidence that some of the more competent Baathist leadership on the insurgent side is made up of relatively young midlevel members of the former security services, rather than the discredited members of the Saddam clique. By automatically excluding them from the process, the Iraqi government would give them very little choice but to keep fight-

By offering an immediate amnesty and allowing for the former midlevel Baathists to form a legitimate party to represent Sunni interests, the new Iraqi leadership can drive a wedge separating nationalist Iraqi Sunnis who might want to participate from the foreign fighters and hard-core former members of the dis-

When interim Prime Minister Ayad Allawi made this offer to the Sunni resistance before, the caveats he put on it - at the insistence of hard-line Shiites and in response to bad advice from some Ameri-cans — were clearly unacceptable: Anyone who had waged a successful attack on the Americans or government forces was automatically excluded from the process. This left the opposition with a choice between continuing to fight and capitulating. The new government has the temporary advantage of being able to ignore such pressure.

The opposition in Iraq is a fragile coali-tion of forces with incompatible views as to its goals - other than the goal of getting the Americans out of the country. In fact, some of the most radical members probably want to see us remain, since shooting at Americans is their sole claim to legitima cy. Fracturing that coalition is the key to success.

Gary Anderson, a retired Marine Corps officer, has been an adviser to the Defense Department on the creation of Iraqi security forces and has traveled to Iraq in that capacity. This column first appeared in The Washington Post.

'Blake Shelton's Bar & Grill'

By JOHN HAVES Pittsburgh Post-Gazette

lake Shelton didn't like "Austin." The country ballad by David Kent and Kirsti Manna, about love lost and regained over a telephone answering machine, was offered on a demo as a slug-

Shelton's record company practically insisted that he take it nome and listen to it again, learn to play it on guitar and make it

Shelton reluctantly took the advice and scored his first Top 10 country hit.

Previously, the singer-songwrit-er had passed on "Ten Rounds with Jose Cuervo," which Tracy Byrd turned into a smash hit; and 'I Just Want to Be Mad," which did pretty well for Terri Clark. But Shelton isn't whining or wishing for second chances

"Those songs just didn't con-nect with me," he says, in a re-cent phone interview. "I passed on a lot of songs. If I decided to go back, I still wouldn't sing them."

A solid songwriter in his own right, Shelton is getting the hang of playing Nashville's "name that tune," a painstakingly slow and deliberate game in which writers try to get their songs placed with the stars most likely to turn them into hits. Once an artist "names that tune" by claiming a "hold' on it, protocol demands that th song be considered off-limits for anybody else to record, whether or not the singer who laid claim promptly takes it into the studio. After "Austin," Shelton moved to Warner Bros. and took a long, hard look at his career "I brought in a wish list of songs I wished I would have been able to record," he says "They were mostly Merle Hag-gard songs, John Anderson songs, Hank Williams Jr. songs ..

songs that sounded like they songs that sounded like they could be played on a jukebox somewhere. We noticed that they were all drinking songs and realized that maybe this is something we need to do on the next

Welcome to "Blake Shelton's Bar & Grill," a honky-tonk joint off the beaten path where most everything on the menu comes with hot sauce, a shot and a beer. Savvy enough to realize that country radio prefers the musical equivalent of Zima, Shelton, in his old-school traditionalist way. says he'd rather pound tequila. "I would say that radio isn't looking for the next big tradition al country hit." he says. "A lot of what you hear on the radio today is because they don't want to offend anybody. We got to the point where Nashville is making records that they think radio will play instead of records that we want to play. Now we're beginning to hear a good mix of outlaws and hard-core country and pop stuff. I think Nashville is figuring out that radio will play a song wherever it comes from as long as it's a hit."

That's why on "Bar & Grill" he's not afraid to join in the stylish Jimmy Buffett island party with Paul Overstreet and Rory Feek's "Some Beach," revisit Conway Twitty's classic "Good-bye Time," and get gritty on Mary Gauthier's desolate "I Drink."

Shelton throws in his own two cents on "Love Gets in the Way, and gets slightly raunchy on Overstreet's "Cotton Pickin' Time," in which a pair of skin-ny-dipping lovers find some afternoon delight.
"It's up tempo," he says, laughing, "and about as inbred, redneck country as you can get."

Blake Shelton performs in Oshkosh, Wis., in June 2003.

Temp gets Rather job

Dan Rather will be replaced with veteran "Face the Nation" host Rob Schieffer on an interim basis when Rather steps down next month as CBS Evening News anchor.

Schieffer's selection was confirmed Wednesday by CBS News president Andrew Heyward. He would be a bridge toward a new format for the evening news.

mired in last place in the ratings behind NBC and ABC CBS chief Leslie Moonves said last month that he was probably going to install a multi-anchor format on the broadcast. Schieffer was the moderator last fall for one of the three presidential debates be-

He's Berra, Berra angry

New York Yankees legend and AFLAC TV ad icon Yogi Berra has filed a $10 million lawsuit against TBS, claiming the cable television network sullied his name by using it in a racy advertisement for its "Sex and the City" reruns, reports The Associated Press

Berra's lawsuit, filed in Manhattan's state Supreme Court last week, said the ad caused "severe damage to his reputation" with its reference to Kim Cattrall's sexually promiscuous character, Samantha.

The offending ad. Berra's attorneys said, queried readers about the definition of "yogasm." Possible definitions: (a) a type of yo-yo trick, (b) sex with Yogi Berra and (c) what Samantha has with a guy from yoga class. The answer is (c).

The reference to sex made in connection with the 79-year-old Berra "engenders a moral taint that has damaged his otherwise spotless reputa-tion," according to the lawsuit. eeks $10 million for use of

Duncan hurts knee in win

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES - Tim Duncan was on the floor, grabbing his left knee with both hands and writhing in obvious pain.

The San Antonio Spurs could only watch helplessly and hope for the best.

Fortunately, it appears that's what they got. Duncan sat out the last 151/2 minutes after hyperextending his left knee during the Spurs' 103-91 victory over the Los Angeles Lak-Thursday night, but doesn't think he'll miss any more playing time. "It feels pretty good." Duncan said afterward. "It'll be all right." That's a relief for his coaches and teammates. "When it's your best player, that makes you think a whole lot of things," Spurs coach Gregg Popovich said.

'Very scary, very scary," San Antonio's Tony Parker said.
"He's our star. That's the main guy for us.

The Spurs don't play again until Tuesday night, giving Duncan time to rest and recuperate. The game was the first for the Lakers since Rudy Tomjanovich resigned as coach, citing health concerns. Frank Hamblen, Tomjanovich's replacement, lobbied for the return of Phil Jackson earlier in the day.

Parker had 22 points and nine assists, and Malik Rose came off the bench for season-high totals of 19 points and 11 rebounds for the Spurs, who blew most of a 28-point lead in the fourth quarter with Duncan on the bench before going on a 10-5 run to finish the game. Duncan was injured with 8:40 left before halftime in a collision with Caron Butler. Duncan sat out the rest of the second quarter, but started the second half and had nine points and five rebounds in the third quarter before coming out for good with 3:39 to play in the period.

"Once I took him out of the game and we had the lead, I just didn't think it would be very smart to put him back in," Popov-ich said. "He wanted to go in, he was begging me. I just thought he was too stiff.

"One game is not more important than his health." Duncan finished with 17 points in 19 minutes. The Spurs outscored Los Ange les 37-15 in the third quarter for an 80-55 lead, and led 89-61 early in the final period when the Lakers went on a 23-2 run to draw within seven points with 3:51 remaining. But that was as close as they would get.

"It just shows what we're capable of and how we can play if we get after it a little bit," said Lamar Odom, who led the Lakers with 23 points and 13 rebounds.

Manu Ginobili added 17 points and nine assists for the Spurs (38-10) who have won four straight and eight of nine.

"Their lead got too big," Odom said. "The San Antonio Spurs don't lose a game when they're up by 25.

The Lakers are 5-5 without Kobe Bryant, who hasn't played since spraining his right ankle Jan. 13. Bryant hopes to play at some point during his team's five-game road trip, which begins Sunday at Houston.

Heat 100, Cavaliers 88: Shaquille O'Neal had 26 points and 12 rehounds and the Heat overcame 31 points and 10 assists from LeBron James, voted an All-Star starter earlier in the day, to beat the visiting Cavaliers.

Eddie Jones added 22 points and Dwyane Wade scored 20 for the Heat, who improved to 12-2 following a loss.

Zydrunas Ilgauskas had 23 points, and Drew Gooden had 10 points and 12 rebounds for the Cavaliers.

Clippers 106, Grizzlies 103: Bobby Simmons scored seven of his 26 points in the final three minutes, and Marko Jaric added 25 points as the visiting Clippers won their third straight snapped a seven-game losing streak to the Grizzlies.

Brian Cardinal missed a desperation shot from beyond midcourt at the buzzer, sending the Grizzlies to only their second loss in seven games. Mike Miller led Memphis with 16 points.

James voted 2nd youngest All-Star starter

By TIM REVNOLDS

The Associated Press

MIAMI - LeBron James has already had his share of accomplishments in his voung NBA career

He's the reigning rookie of the year, often gets mentioned as an MVP candidate, has more fame and fortune than he'll ever need and has transformed the Cleveland Cavaliers into a playoff contender.

But James ranked Thursday's news among his career highlights: The kid is now an All-Star

The 20-year-old James will be the second-voungest starter in All-Star Game history, after collecting more votes than any other Eastern Conference guard in fan balloting. Only Kobe Bryant, who was 19 when he made his All-Star debut in 1998 made an earlier appearance in the NBA's midseason showcase event.

"It means a lot, man. It means a lot because it's part of the fans," said James, the only NBA player averaging at least 25 points, seven rebounds and seven assists this season. "The fans do all the voting. To know I've got that many fans, you know, it's a light in my heart and one of the best things that's happened to me.

The other nine starters for the Feb. 20 game in Denver are all All-Star returnees.

Yao Ming of the Houston Rockets received a record 2.558.278 votes in winning the starting spot at center for the Western Conference for the third straight year. He Garnett, Tim Duncan of San Antonio, the Lakers' Bryant and Houston's Tracy McGrady.

center Shaquille O'Neal's Miami 2,488,089 votes topped the East balloting and easily earned him his 12th All-Star trip. He'll be joined by James, Philadelphia's Allen Iverson, New Jersey's Vince Carter and Orlando's Grant Hill - who edged Indiana's Jermaine O'Neal by just 65,051 votes for the final forward spot.

Yao and Shag both eclipsed the previous record vote total; 2,451,136 ballots were cast for Chicago's Michael Jordan in 1997.

"Thank you to the fans," Shaquille O'Neal said. "I've been fortunate enough to go every year that I've been in the NBA, and I want to thank them. I appreciate it.

Jermaine O'Neal a starter for the East last year, missed 15 games earlier this season after being suspended for his part in a brawl with Detroit fans at a Nov. 19 Pacers-Pistons game. He is averaging 26.2 points and 9.3 rebounds, while Hill is averaging 18.9 points 4.5 rehounds and 3.6 as-

Yet Hill, sidelined for most of the past three seasons after undergoing four surgical procedures on his troublesome left ankle, was selected an All-Star nonetheless for the first time since 2001.

"It's amazing. I haven't expected any of this. I was just trying to concentrate on coming in and being healthy and not judging myself or looking at any personal goals," Hill said.

"I've been a little shocked at all this, all the love and attention — and I'm thankful

All-Star reserves, selected by the league's coaches, will be announced next

Each coach must vote for seven players - two guards, two forwards, one center and two others — from the other teams in his conference.

Stan Van Gundy of the Miami Heat will coach the East team, while the West will be led by the coach of the team with the conference's best record following Sunday's games. San Antonio's Gregg Popovich and Phoenix's Mike D'Antoni are the leading candidates, with the Spurs 38-10 and the Suns 37-11 after Thursday's games

James will truly be the new kid on the block; the other nine All-Star starters have a combined 61 All-Star appearances. But Van Gundy insists that James has earned a place among the NBA's biggest names.

"He's already established himself as one of the absolute best players in this league. Van Gundy said. "He can do a lot of things and hurt you in a lot of ways, virtually every way possible

He can drive the ball, he can shoot the ball, he's a great, great passer, he can post, he can rebound

Shaquille O'Neal, whose Heat beat James' Cavaliers by 12 points on Thursday night, said he's looking forward to having

Cleveland Cavaliers' LeRron James (23) will be the second-youngest starter in All-Star history after leading all Eastern Coference players in fan voting for the Feb. 20 game.

the phenom as a teammate for the first

"We're going to go out there and have fun, a lot of lobs, and a lot of dunks," he said. "Hopefully we can get the win so we can get that $50,000."

Tortured soul led to Rudy T's departure

EL SEGUNDO, Calif. — Yester-day's NBA head coaches had one assistant

They obeyed the first-plane-out rule, squeezing their way onto commercial aircraft, often before dawn. They made a lot less money than they do today.

They had noisy, hot-running projectors, not tape machines They practiced at whatever high school gym they could find. They had one trainer, who often kept track of the timeouts and fouls

They had no physiotherapist or strength coach. There was no offseason program. Sometimes there were three games in three nights. Their practices were open, to reporters, drifters and stray dogs They never dreamed of the comforts from which Rudy Tom janovich walked away, officially, Wednesday. Our own plane? Our own prac-tice complex? Five assistant coaches? Red Auerbach might be coaching today. Rudy T is not.

The job was more, and less than he had remembered. He left the Houston Rockets the sea before last, and before that he left them so the doctors could treat bladder cancer. Here, he left the Lakers after 43 games. He explained to them as best he could. before practice, and then cried. "We'd won four in a row then,

A coach, like nature itself, abhors a vacuum. Give him four tanes and he'll watch four Give him 10 and he'll watch 10. Tomjanovich, as he recalled it Wednesday while he sat in the cobwebs of the Los Angeles Kings' locker room, stopped farming out his work to all those assistants. He could not escape his own diligence.

As the season droned, Tomjanov-ich couldn't shake sinus infections, stomach bugs and a cloud cover of fatigue. One round of antibiotics didn't do it. Another, stronger regimen was prescribed, but when the doctor asked Tomjanovich if it was worth it - worth the risk of addiction, worth the psychological dependence - the coach couldn't answer immediately.

Judge wants deposition from Bryant

The Associated Press

DENVER . Before the month is out, NBA star Kobe Bryant will probably have to answer the first official questions about his assault case since talking with investiga-tors the night after he was accused of rape in 2003. U.S. District Judge Richard Matsch on Wednesday pushed attorneys for the Los Angeles attorneys for the Los Angeles Lakers guard and the 20-year-old woman to sched-ule Bryant's deposition before the end of February. He also said he hoped the woman's civil lawsuit against Bryant will go to trial this summer.

The woman sued Bryant in August, three weeks before the criminal case against him collapsed when she decided she could not take part in a trial. The lawsuit seeks unspecified damages for mental inju-ries, humiliation and public scorn that the former hotel worker said she has suffered since their encounter in June 2003 at a Vail-area resort.

Bryant, a married father of one, issued an apology but insisted the sex was consensual. The woman, who is pregnant, left the courthousewith her husband. Defense attorney L. Lin Wood declined to reveal the man's name or details of the marriage, except to say it happened last fall. The judge also ordered the attorneys to stop including "im-material, impertinent and scandalous" information in public

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. - Herb Sendek got his first up-close look at North Carolina freshman Maryin Williams. The North Carolina State coach saw plenty.

Hodge had 18 points, but couldn't keep the Wolfpack (13-8, 3-5) from falling to 3-7 in their past 10 games. The trouble started when point guard Tony Bethel contracted colitis after a two-week battle with the flu, and sed four games.

He only returned to the lineup full-time in N.C. State's previous game against Clemson, and in this one, Bethel played 35 min-

Even with Bethel, the Wolfpack ad few answers for the Tar Heels. Reserve David Noel fin-ished off a steal in the first half with a reverse dunk, and Marvin Williams might have topped him with a highlight-nackage dunk during the big spurt in the final 20 minutes.

He canned nine straight points with a breakaway slam that featured him posing in the air with his left hand behind his head. Later, with walk-ons and other little-used players finishing out the blowout, several teammates were mimicking Williams' move

Kostelic holds off Paerson in combined

BY ERICA BULMAN The Associated Press

SANTA CATERINA VALFUR-VA, Italy — Olympic champion Janica Kostelic capped a remarkable comeback from illness and injury Friday, retaining her world ski championships combined title after a spirited battle with Sweden's Anja Paerson.

Kostelic, who had her thyroid gland removed last season and endured several knee operations, completed the morning downhill leg and the two afternoon slalom runs in a combined time of 2 minutes, 53.70 seconds. "The gold medal means a lot to me. To be able to defend it even though I had no expectations here wonderful." the Croat said. "My first slalom run was so-so but, second run I gave everything I had and I won.

Paerson, who nipped at Kostel-ic's heels the entire day, took the silver in 2:55.15. The Swede, who won the super-G gold medal last weekend, was .66 behind Kostelic after the downhill run, and then narrowed the gap to .37 after posting the fastest opening slalom leg.

However, she was no match for Kostelic in the second slalom run. "This is my first medal in the Marlies Schild claimed bronze in 2:56.40. A tech-nical specialist. Schild was 19th after the downhill but climbed to fourth after the opening slalom run. She then moved into third for a medal after American Lindsey Kildow was unable to maintain her position. "I'm overjoyed. I didn't have

The victory helped make up for Kostelic's recent disappointment, when she skied out in the opening run of the slalom in Zagreb in front of a massive home crowd attending Croatia's first World Cup Kostelic collected gold medals in the 2002 Salt Lake City Olympics in slalom, giant slalom and combined event. However, she's been struggling to return to form after missing last season because of her many maladies.

She skipped the super-G event last weekend to prepare for the combined. Kostelic won the combined in the 2003 worlds in St. Moritz. Switzerland. Paerson could try to m,edal in all disciplines here but she has yet to announce whether she will compete in the women's open downhill on Sunday

GREENWOOD, S.C. - Lander University guard Jason Davis was just happy to be back on the basketball court.

He was playing the game he eniovs, the game he'd sometimes think about while on Marine patrol duty in Mosul or during long frigid nights camped in the Iraqi

He provided security, went on patrols and sometimes searched from house to house for insurgents in hot spots such as Tikrit, Basra and Mosul during the earliest days of Operation Iraqi Freedom

"I would say it changed me. Davis said He parts with wartime details

It took Lander's players several eeks, Evans said, before delving into Davis' time in Iraq.

"I don't talk about it much." Davis said.

Davis, from Fountain Inn, S.C. was a basketball star at Hillcrest High who's only goal in life was to play college ball. He signed on at Anderson College, but didn't like the direction his life was headed after his freshman season in 2001. He hadn't done as well academically as he hoped, and knew something had to change. Swept up in the patriotism that followed the Sept. 11 terror attacks, Davis joined the Marines much to the shock of friends and family.

"My grandma said I was "azv." Davis recalled "Friends told me, 'You've got talent, why are you doing this?

Davis endured 13 weeks at Parris Island in the fall of 2002. As much as he wanted the challenge of Marine boot camp, he would ask himself, 'Why this?'

Davis has to drill several weekends a year with the Marines, often going right from basketball practice.

Davis' biggest basketball moment so far came Jan. 22 against Armstrong Atlantic when he hit a jumper with time running out in Lander's 57-56 victory. "It was like a flash," Davis said. "It took forever for the ball to go in.'

WACO Teyas - Aaron Bruce grew up in Australia watching highlights of Michael Jordan and trying to emulate the ballhandling skills of Pete Maravich

Instead of following in the footsteps of his two uncles who played Australian Rules Football the national game he played until his freshman year in high school, Bruce's dream is the NBA

"The further I got in basketball as a junior. I realized my future was to eventually get over to the States," Bruce said

Bruce took that step by going to Baylor after playing for Australia's national junior team. The guard is now one of the top freshmen in the country, and a centerpiece for second-year coach Scott Drew's continued rebuilding of the program.

Through the first 18 games. Bruce averaged 16.7 points, second among Division I freshmen behind Auburn's Toney Douglas (17.7 ppg). Bruce is also the top Big 12 freshman in field-goal percentage (48.8 percent), three-point shooting (41.3 percent) and free throw accuracy (86.8 percent).

Drew first saw Bruce while watching tane of Australia's 2003 victory over the United States in the junior world championships Bruce scored 25 points against Illinois standout Dee Brown in the Aussies' upset victory.

Proven teams such as UCLA and Arizona also recruited Bruce But he was drawn to Drew and 44Being able to say

Baylor, even as the team was being investigated by the NCAA a scandal under previous coach Dave Bliss that was exposed after the death of a player.

"It's easy to go to a great team and just be a so-so player and go along for the ride with the program," Bruce said. "Being able to say you were a part of rebuilding and getting that program to the likes of a UCLA, an Arizona, a Duke, Kentucky, Kansas — that's definitely our goal here."

Bruce has started every game scoring in double figures 16

While Baylor (9-9, 1-6 Big 12) still struggles because of inexperience and lack of quality depth. Bruce continues to excel

'He plays like a senior or older

... He's crafty and he's got a great feel for the game," Texas coach Rick Barnes said. "Aaron Bruce could play for anybody," Oklahoma coach Kelvin Sampson said, "They've got the great player at the one po-good team. That is something very apparent to Drew, who was realistic with Bruce about the struggles the team was expected to face.

Bruce has already proven to be one of the hardest workers on the team, still taking 200 to 300 shots a day before or after practice. He has become an example to even his older teammates.

'He works so extremely hard on the court to get himself better, and off the court players just love him," Drew said. "He's a guy that puts the team first and his actions back up his words."

International play gave Bruce the chance to go against some of the best players in the world. The high-speed contact in Australian Rules Football helped with the physical aspect of basketball So the adjustment to Baylor and the Big 12 hasn't been too tough. The faster-paced, higher-scoring American game suits his style, and he hasn't been overwhelmed by expectations to score a lot and be a team leader.

"I haven't really felt that," he said. "I've had a lot of fun. I welcome challenges like that, and 've had a great time doing it. Luckily for Baylor, he's just getting started Baylor's Aaron Bruce, who gree up in Australia watching highlights of Michael Jordan and trying to emulate the ball-handling skills of Pete Maravich, is one of the top freshmen in college basketball.

German boxing great, Louis foe Schmeling dies at 99

BY ROY KAMMERER

BERLIN — Max Schmeling, the heavyweight champion whose two fights with Joe Louis set off a propaganda war between the Nazi regime and the United States on the eve of World War II, died at 99.

Schmeling, one of Germany's biggest sports figures, died Wednesday at his home in Hollenstedt, his foundation in Hamburg

The boxer was buried Friday next to his wife, Anny Ondra, in Hollenstedt at a ceremony attended by a small circle of friends, the foundation added. Pastor Olaf Koenitz said it was Schmeling's wish to be buried privately.

"He was a star, but he didn't let fame get into his head," Chancellor Gerhard Schroeder said.

German President Horst Koehler, on a state visit to Israel, lauded Schmeling as a "great example in sport" and for "his humanitu"

Formula One champion Michael Schumacher called Schmeling "a man of firm principles."

Schmeling's extraordinary career will be remembered for his bouts with Louis, which produced a lasting bond between the boxers despite a politically charged atmosphere when they fought.

Born Sept. 28, 1905 of humble origins in a small town in the state of Brandenburg, Schmeling became interested in boxing after seeing a film about the sport.

world champion when he beat Jack Sharkey in New York on June 12, 1930 after the American was disqualified for a fourth-round low blow. He was the only German to be world heavyweight champion.

Schmeling lost his title to Sharkey two years later on a disputed decision, but came back to knock out the previously unbeaten Louis in the 12th round on June 19, 1936, which the Nazi regime trumpeted as a sign of "Aryan supremacy." Schmeling was a 10-1 underdog and his victory is considered one of the biggest upsets in boxing history. But in a rematch at Yankee Stadium on June 22, 1938, Louis knocked out Schmeling in the first round.

At first, Schmeling was popular in the United States. But by the time the rematch took place, he was viewed as a symbol of the Nazis. The fight was portrayed in both countries as good vs. evil.

The Nazis sought to project

Schmeling as an Aryan Super-

President Franklin D. Roosevelt invited Louis to the White House to exhort the black boxer to beat Schmeling.

Louis, then the champion, sent the German challenger to the canvas four times and knocked him out in 2 minutes, 4 seconds of the first round.

"Looking back, I'm almost happy I lost that fight," Schmeling said in 1975. "Just imagine if I would have come back to Germany with a victory. I had nothing to do with the Nazis, but they would have given me a medal. After the war I might have been considered a war criminal."

After the loss, the Nazis distanced themselves from Schmel-

In 1940, he was drafted into the military as a parachutist. A year later, he was severely injured and hospitalized for months.

Despite the picture of him in the United States as a tool of the Nazis, Schmeling had run-ins with the regime even before the first Louis fight.

Although he had lunched with Hitler and had long discussions with his propaganda minister Joseph Goebbels, Schmeling angered the Nazi bosses in 1935 by refusing to join the Nazi party, fire his Jewish-American manager, Joe Jacobs, and divorce Ondra, a Czech-born film star.

During the 1936 Berlin Olympics, Schmeling extracted a promise from Hitler that all U.S. athletes would be protected. He hid two Jewish boys in his Berlin apartment during Kristallnacht (the night of broken glass) in 1938, when the Nazis burned books in a central square and rampaged through the city, setting synagogues on fire.

He reportedly used his influence to save Jewish friends from concentration camps.

After the war, Schmeling was nearly destitute and fought five more times for the money. He retired after a 10-round loss to Walter Neusel in 1948 at 43 with a record of 56-10-4 with 39 knock-outs.

Schmeling used the money from the bouts to buy the license to the Coca-Cola franchise in Germany and grew wealthy in the postwar era. He also marketed his name, retaining his huge popularity in Germany despite his problems with the Nazis.

Over the years, Schmeling treasured his friendship with Louis and quietly gave the down-and-out American gifts of money. He also paid for Louis' funeral in 1981.

In his final years, Schmeling spent three or four hours a day watching television in his home in Hollenstedt. He remained married to Ondra for 54 years until she died in 1987. The two, who met on the set of a film in which Schmeling appeared, married in 1932. The couple had no children.

"I had a happy marriage and a nice wife," Schmeling said in 1985. "I accomplished everything you can. What more can you want?"

Thrashers' Heatley gets probation for teammate's death

The Associated Press

ATLANTA — Atlanta Thrashers star Dany Heatley was sentenced Friday to three years of probation and must give 150 speeches about the dangers of speeding after pleading guilty in the death of teammate Dan Snyder in a car accident.

Heatley pleaded guilty to four of the six charges he faced. In exchange, the only felony charge—first-degree vehicular homicide—was dropped along with a charge of reckless driving.

He pleaded guilty to second-degree vehicular homicide, driving too fast for conditions, failure to maintain a lane and speeding for the Sept. 29, 2003, car crash in Atlanta that killed his 25-year-old teammate.

"The mistake I made that night was speeding," Heatley said at the sentencing. "This mistake will stay with me the rest of my life."

Police estimated that Heatley, the MVP of the 2003 NHL All-Star Game, was driving his black Ferrari convertible on a curved road in a residential area when it ran into a brick pillar and iron fence.

The sides met for nine hours Thursday, one day after the union rejected the league's latest salary-cap proposal, and made plans to get together again Friday.

Although a drop-dead date has never been announced, it appears that time has all but run out to make a deal.

The union invited Commissioner Gary Bettman and players' association executive director Bob Goodenow back to the table for Thursday's meeting after the leaders sat out the previous five sessions during a two-week soan.

The NHL declined comment on what was being discussed, or if any progress was being made.

The 4%-month lockout reached its 41st day on Thursday and has wiped out 772 regular-season games and the All-Star Game. The remainder of the 1,230-game schedule could be called off within days if significant progress isn't made quickly.

Falcons RB Dunn chosen NFL Man of the Year

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Atlanta running back Warrick Dunn was honored Friday as the Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year for his "Homes For The Holiday" program, which helps single mothers become first-time honeowners. Huskies' former compliance director felt unfairly blamed

KENT, Wash. — Washington's former compliance director said Thursday she felt unfairly blamed by university administrators for an erroneous e-mail — key evidence in Rick Neuheisel's lawsuit against the school and the NCAA.

Dana Richardson testified in the King County Superior Court trial of the fired football coach's lawsuit that she was devastated after learning from NCAA investigators that her March 13, 2003, memo could result in a major penalty against Washington.

The university and NCAA took the position that Richardson was wrong when she wrote in the 1999 and 2003 e-mails to Washington's athletic staff that gambling with friends in off-campus pools is acceptable.

The e-mail is a cornerstone of Neuheisel's case. The former Huskies coach, fired in June 2003, believes it gave him permission to bet in auction-style NCAA basketball pools where he won $18,523 in 2002 and 2003.

Appellate court reinstates lawsuit against Jordan

CHICAGO — An appellate court ruled Thursday that a woman who accused Michael Jordan of reneging on a promise to pay her S5 million to keep quiet about an affair presented sufficient facts to pursue her case in court.

The ruling by the Illinois Court of Appeals said Karla Knafel's breach of contract lawsuit should be reinstated along with a lawsuit filed by Jordan accusing her of extortion. In 2003, Cook County Judge Richard A. Siebel threw out both lawsuits.

Jordan's lawyer, Frederick J. Sperling, said he would ask the Illinois Supreme Court to hear the case.

Hart takes lead in FBR Open

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — Dudleyer Hart, a two-time PGA winner but without a victory since 2000, took a one-stroke lead Thursday with a 4-under-par 67 in the first round of the FBR Open, a round that was suspended for 33 minutes because of the wind and took nearly six hours to finish. The wind had subsided considerably when the opening round was completed Friday morning. Kevin Na and Heath Slocum finished their round to join Stewart Cink and Hunter Mahan at 3-under 68. Five others were at 2-under 69.

Safety stand-down forces cancellaton of rifle season

New regulations received too late to proceed; Würzburg still has hopes of competing for title

BY RUSTY BRYAN Stare and Strings

The DODDS high school marksmanship season fell victim to a worldwide safety stand-down this week. But the five-time defending European champion Würzburg Wolves still have their sights set on a national title.

Army JROTC ranges around the world were shut down just before the European season was to get under way Dec. 4, according to Bob Hase, director of Army instruction for DODDS-Europe.

The high school season was put on hold until new safety recommendations were received. When they were finally issued, it was too late for the season to resume.

The stand-down was the result of a fatality at a military school in the States. Hase said.

"A cadet accidentally kicked over a rifle. It discharged, and another cadet unfortunately was killed," Hase said. "Even though they were using .22s and we use precision air rifles, the shutdown applied to everyone.

Gen. Kevin P. Byrnes, commander of the Army Training and Doctrine Command at Fort Monroe, Va., ordered the ranges closed until Cadet Command could implement a complete new program of safety procedures and instructor training certifica-

"We're a winter sport in DODDS." Hase said, "We have to follow their seasons."

Despite the setback, Würzburg plans on pursuing the national title that barely eluded it last year. It finished second.

"We entered a postal qualifying match [for this year's Junior ROTC nationals] before the ranges were shut down last fall." Würzburg coach Jack Wayne said by telephone Friday

"I'm 99.9 percent certain we'll qualify," Wayne said. The championship is scheduled for March 31 through April 2 at Fort Benning, Entering the postal meet, in which teams receive targets from national organizers, fire at them in the presence of witnesses and return them to be scored by the organizers, proved to be a case of perfect timing for the Wolves.

Würzburg — which was the top Army JROTC team and second overall to a Marine Corps JROTC unit from Kentucky by 33 points last year - would not have had a chance to qualify for this year's nationals had it waited any longer to conduct its postal match.

Bruce Andrews, coach of the Hohenfels High School rifle team, checks the marksmanship of a competitor during the 2003 European high school rifle championships. The 2004-05 rifle season was cancelled because of safety concerns with rifle ranges.

In the meantime, DODDS is communities looking at our rangmaking sure the ranges are up to standard

Ironically, Hase said, JROTC ranges in Europe have always stressed safety, even though they are used for air rifles only.

"Our safety standards were tight," Hase said. "We had the es and were following the [National Rifle Association] rules and procedures the Cadet Command adopted. The safety of our cadets and range personnel has always been our top priority."

Pats' Bruschi: 'The end result is still hitting someone

he kid always loved contact

Tedy Bruschi's introduction to football came with a handful of pals on a small. weather-beaten patch of grass in a tough part of San Francisco. Come Sunday, he will step onto the biggest and best manicured stage the game has to offer. But the thing Bruschi loved most about it has never changed.

"The end result is still hitting someone" he said as the Patriots and Eagles moved into the stretch run for the Super Bowl. "But now I know there's a lot more to it. How much more depends on how deep you want to dig. On one level, Bruschi is talking about learning his craft, about how a defensive lineman who relied on speed and power morphed into a linebacker who can decipher opposing offenses with unerring accuracy and cause as much havoc with his intelligence as his aggres-

On another level it was about learning how to control the anger that roiled inside Bruschi since childhood. After his parents divorced, he struggled to please a demanding father and felt helpless to lift the burdens his mother had to take on. Bruschi fought often and drank more than he should have The horizon never stretched beyond what was in front of him.

"I had a chip on my shoulder the size of a boulder." he told the last month. "I suppose from comes growing un hard. I can't explain it All I know is it seemed like I was angry when I played football Bruschi didn't play organized football until he was 14, but he made up for the lost time in a hurry. He ran track, wrestled and lettered in football his last two years at Roseville High near Sacramento. Calif., but didn't think about playing college ball until the recruiting letters began pouring in.

At Arizona, he became the lead-r of the Wildcats' "Desert Swarm" defense and wound up tying the NCAA Division I record for career sacks. But there, too, Bruschi never considered stepping up to the next level until everyone around him started speculating about his place in the NFI. draft. It turns out the pro scouts hadn't thought much about his chances, either; Bruschi slipped to the Patriots' third round in the 1996 draft, the 86th pick overall.

"The first day in camp made me realize how much I had to learn," he recalled, "It was so much more challenging that it made me want to - actually. forced me to — learn the game all game's finest linebackers has been documented on highlight reels ever since. Bruschi served his apprenticeship as a part-time defender and special-teams marvel, getting in just enough licks to keen him satisfied. All the while. he patiently mastered coach Bill Belichick's intricate schemes, studying film endlessly and gaining the experience and confidence necessary to become more than a bit player.

With more responsibility came more and more plays. He ripped the ball away from running backs, separated it from receivers, stole perfectly good throws from quarterbacks and carried a few back to the end zone. That kind of versatility has become as crucial to the success of New England's punishing, opportunistic defense as the mad genius of a coach who draws it up.

"Intense, passionate, productive, smart, physical and now you can use the words 'Pro Bowler, too, to describe Tedy," said Mike Vrabel, who plays alongside Bruschi, "which was long overdue as far as I'm concerned."

Philadelphia Eagles tight end L.J. Smith, whose job will carry him into Bruschi's territory more than once Sunday, wouldn't contest even one of those points.

"He's probably not the best athlete on the field." Smith said. "just the one who makes plays. You know coach Belichick doesn't trust too many guys to step outside their roles, but the more you watch film, the more places he's likely to turn up."

At 31, Bruschi's life away from the field is a reflection of his maturity on it.

He quit drinking a half-dozen years ago, troubled by the fact that unlike when he played football, he was losing control at all the wrong moments. It was one quality he couldn't bear passing on to his three young sons

"Everyone has troubles in their life," Bruschi said. "But there comes a time when you try to look at yourself and say it's time to grow up. It's a decision I just made. About five, six years ago, I decided I wanted to become the best father I could."

On game days, though, Bruschi has no problems reaching back for the memories of that kid who considered a scraped knee a badge of courage and found nothing more satisfying than lowering his shoulder and knocking a ball carrier into the next block.

No guarantee Owens will start | Path from wrestling

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Philadelphia Eagles receiver Terrell Owens might not start in the Super Bowl, coach Andy Reid said Friday in his final news conference before the title game against the New England Patriofts.

"We've got it broken down into certain plays we'd like to see him in there," Reid said. "If one of those happens to be the first play," Owens will start.

Owens has two screws and a plate in his right leg from a severely sprained ankle and a fractured fibula in a Dec. 19 victory over Dallas.

After missing the last two games of the regular season and playoff victories over Minnesota and Atlanta, Owens proclaimed himself ready to play in the Super Bowl.

"I've always wanted to be in the Olympics. Maybe later in my career, I'll take another shot," said Neal, who missed making the 2000 Games by one spot when he finished second in the U.S. wres-

"In wrestling, you represent your country," he said. "You're wearing the flag on your singlet. Nothing could replace that.

The United States has produced only two super-heavyweight world champions: Neal and Bruce Baumgartner. But Neal finished second in the 286-pound weight class in the Olympic trials, missing the only spot on the U.S. team going to Sydney. After losing again — to the same wrestler, Kerry McCoy for a chance to go to the 2001 world championships, Neal decided to try football.

"I was a regular guy, watching TV every Sunday," Neal said. "That's all I knew about football." Neal got in touch with an agent who arranged a tryout with the Patriots. He showed up for his tryout with wrestling shoes and had to borrow spikes and some other equipment from linebacker Mike

"Those are skills every athlete has," Philadelphia defensive end Jamaal Green said. "They just use it in different ways."

The Patriots tried Neal on defense — "that was stupid," Belichick said — and released him at the end of training camp in 2001. Neal caught on with the Eagles' practice squad and then went back to the Patriots late in the season; although he was never activated, he earned his first Super Bowl ring.

Neal made the field in 2002 but got hurt and missed the entite 2003 season, when he earned his second championship ring. But he made enough progress in his technique and his knowledge of the terminology and schemes to compete for playing time in training camp. After the second game, he became the full-time starter.

"He was light years ahead of where he was in '01," Belichick said. "He just doesn't have the kind of playing experience of ... guys who have been playing football now for the past dozen years. He is just not in that category yet. He has made tremendous improvement.

"It is a wonderful story about a guy that, with hard work, dedication, overcoming the setbacks of the injuries and the lack of playing experience, has turned into, really, a good football player and has developed a second career for himself."

Smith's career is how easy he supposedly had it, that if someone else had his blockers and was supported by a passing game featuring Troy Alkman and Michael Irvin, they would've done just as well, if not better.

The higgest criticism on

The reality, though, is that no one else had that chance. Smith did, and he made the most of it. On Thursday, he described it as fulfilling his destiny.

"I'm glad I was able to recognize my talent and my opportunities and capitalize on them," he said.

Smith was a complete player, too — a solid receiver and a heck of a blocker, flipping over more than one blitzing defender. He also was driven. He recalled Thursday the oft-told story of him stiting down as a robkie and writing down his career goals, which included passing Walter Payton to become the leading rusher in league history.

He expects someone to eventually catch him. But he also knows it won't be easy.

"It takes grace, it takes desire, it takes determination, a lot of ability and a short-term memory," Smith said. "You have to forget what you did before and prepare every year like it's your first year, making that sacrifice and commitment."

All his best traits came together on Jan. 2, 1994. Though not the best game of his career, it's certainly the most memorable.

Despite separating his right shoulder, Smith ran 32 times and caught 10 passes for 229 yards and a touchdown, leading Dallas to a 16-13 overtime victory over the New York Giants in the season finale.

The victory propelled the Cowboys to a second straight Super Bowl title and cemented his status among the game's elite play-

Then again, defying the odds was an underlying theme throughout Smith's career. He liked people to say he couldn't do something, and then he'd go prove he could.

One of the greatest high school players in U.S. history, Smith showed he could keep it up in college by rushing for more than 1,000 yards in just seven games; nobody has ever done it quicker. After his junior year, Steve Spurrier took over at Florida and was so eager to unleash his passing offense that he made it clear he wouldn't mind if Smith went pro, so he did.

Sixteen players were drafted before Dallas took Smith, including another running back: Blair Thomas. Of those 16, only Junios Seau and possibly Cortez Kennedy will even come close to the Hall of Fame, while Smith already can book a hotel room in Canton, Ohio, in August 2010.

Smith could've called it a career two years ago, when Dallas was ready to move on without him, but felt he still had some yards left, maybe enough to crack 20 000

His quest failed in more ways than the obvious. He damaged his reputation with some of the things he did and said, but Thursday's thank you-filled speech was all about making amends.

In a few weeks, he'll sign a one-day contract with Dallas so his retirement will be officially listed as happening for the Cow-

Regardless, his place in football history already is secure.

Smith made a splash in every stage of his storied career

BY JAIME ARON The Associated Press

DALLAS - Even in the way he retired, Emmitt Smith showed a knack for reading blocks and picking the right hole. He said goodbye Thursday at the site of the Super Bowl, surrounded by football's biggest stars and swarms of media. Better yet, it happened to be in his home state of Florida, where he broke onto the scene as a high school sensation then became a college star.

And, best of all, he went out on his own terms.

Appreciation

Although he didn't crack 20,000 career rushing yards as he hoped, Smith knew he wouldn't get the chance, at least not from the only two teams he'd consider. So it didn't make much sense to stick around.

"I'm happy," Smith said during a tearful, hourlong news conference. "I've given everything I could possibly give to the game."

Closing the book on Smith's record-shattering career revives the debate about where he ranks among the NFL's greatest running backs.

With Smith, though, the point isn't whether he belongs ahead of, behind or between the likes of Jim Brown, Walter Payton and Barry Sanders. What matters is that Smith belongs in the conversation.

Told he was too small and too slow to make it at the next level pretty much from the time he began playing football, Smith lacked blazing speed, jaw-dropping moves or a battering running style. His trademark was more tangible—accomplishments, as in four rushing titles, three Super Bowl championships and MVP awards for the regular season and the Super Bowl.

Then there are the records: most carries (4,409), yards (18,355), rushing touchdowns (164) and 100-yard games (78).

Smith also has the most 1,000-yard seasons with 11, and went over 1,400 yards five years in a row — another unprecedented feat.

In some sports, those marks would be knocked as byproducts of longevity. It's in some sports, those marks would be knocked as byproducts of longevity. It's quite the opposite in football, where durability is the ultimate compliment, especially for a running back.

"Look at me, I'm only 5-9, 215 pounds," Smith said Thursday, for once basking in his stature. "People see guys like Charles Haley and other big guys and ask me, How in the world do you do it?' Sometimes I look at myself and say, 'How in the world do I do it?' I take a lot of pride in going out and doing it."
